VERANSTALTER:

TERMIN/ ORT:

Der Workshop findet am 18. und 19. September 2008, Talstr. 33, Konferenzraum, 04103 Leipzig statt.

ZIELE/ AIMS:

The „writing up“ stage of research proves to be difficult, sometimes hard and tedious, especially if one is a non-native speaker, when nowadays the publication in English journals is unavoidable and unquestionably essential.

This workshop will run for one and a half day, with a maximum of 10 participants. There will be an obligatory meeting beforehand (on the 9th of May, at 11 am, Talstraße 33, Konferenzraum no 162), in which the necessary material to bring and preparations for the course will be discussed.

Participants: This workshop addresses PhD students, who are in the process of publishing their own work, and who are non-native English speakers.

This workshop aims to

- built up and enhance your English speaking and writing skills, accordingly this course will be held entirely in English,
- to run through a morning session of practical English writing skills (common pitfalls, grammar, punctuation, abbreviations) and how to achieve good writing (accuracy, brevity, clarity and style),
- help you in gaining practice and confidence in actually organising yourself and getting first words onto paper, using pieces of your own writing (redraft and work on the abstract as an example),
- demonstrate the process of publication, targeting your writing for a specific journal, addressing the cover letter.
